

Instructional Support Sessions

Fall 2006

*Presented by Dr. Mary Lynn Crow, Professor,
College of Education, and open to all faculty.*

Active Learning: Instructional Methods and Strategies for Student Engagement and the Development of Critical Thinking Skills

Each session will feature a variety of techniques outlined below. The techniques will be demonstrated and faculty will have the opportunity to participate in the demonstrations. The decision as to which techniques will be covered at a given session will depend on the number of faculty who pre-register and the subjects they teach. Thus, it is important for you to pre-register for each session at least one week in advance. New topics and games will be used so even if you attended the sessions last year, you will learn something new. Handouts and light refreshments will be provided.

- Take-A-Stand
- Scamper
- Synectics
- Inquiry Training
- Simulation Games
- Role Play
- Harvard Case Method
- Attribute Listing
- Awareness Training
- Meeting of the Minds
- Six Thinking Hats

Plus 101 Active Learning Strategies to Teach any Subject

Comment from a faculty member who attended the Instructional Support Sessions last year:
"I am very appreciative to the University for seeing the need for growth and development for all faculty. I enjoyed reviewing some things I already knew and picking up fresh ideas and techniques for making teaching more exciting and encouraging student participation. I also enjoyed meeting faculty from other disciplines and sharing ideas, problems and solutions."

I. Friday, September 22	1:00-3:30 p.m.	101 Trimble Hall
II. Friday, October 20	1:00-3:30 p.m.	101 Trimble Hall
III. Friday, November 3	1:00-3:30 p.m.	101 Trimble Hall
IV. Friday, December 8	1:00-3:30 p.m.	101 Trimble Hall

All faculty are welcome. It is not necessary to attend all sessions.
Pre-registration is required. Contact Mary Peoples, Office of the Provost, 2-6139 or mpeoples@uta.edu.